FRIENDLY PLAYERS

It seems that we have come out of our purple patch and are on the up again - and this says a lot for club spirit at Southend United.

All the players I've spoken to on the subject agree that there is a terrific atmosphere of friendliness at Roots Hall and absolutely no petty squabbles and jealousies going on that plague the dressing rooms of many clubs.

Bad feeling can hit a club going through a lean period and make things worse. But not here.

Take last week when Malcolm Webster had to make way in goal for young Sean Rafter. Who was among the first to congratulate Sean on his selection? It was Malcolm, of course.

The two are friends and stay together at training, quick-fire shooting at each other to improve both their games.

And who wished Malcolm well when he got his place back against Crystal Palace? Why, Sean, of course.

One of our players who has been with several clubs during his career was remarking on this feeling of good comradeship at Roots Hall.

"I have known players who, when they think they're in danger of losing their place, knock their rivals a bit harder than they should do in training.

"But you don't get that here. If somebody takes your place you wish him good luck. You know that your turn will come later."

PATIENCE PAYS

Andy Ford has been in and out of the first team, not being able to secure a regular place, since he arrived at Roots Hall from Bournemouth two and a half years ago.

Now he has been given an extended run at left back and has made a lot of friends. His position is not one of the glamour spots on the football field yet Andy often stamps his personality on the game.

I know that Somerset born Andy has been impatient to get regular first team football but he was brought in on the policy of team building for the future. When he joined us he was only 19.

ALL HAPPENING

Roots Hall is buzzing as an entertainments centre these days. The Shrimpers Club, in particular, is in for a busy week.

International cabaret star Oscar Harris is the attraction when he performs at the club next week, 6, 7 and 8 November.

Before Oscar Harris appears the Shrimpers will be used for a HEN NIGHT on Monday 3 November. Tickets £1.

Since I announced that Fanny's Disco is a good place to hold private functions etc, there have been many bookings. But there are still open dates before Christmas, any night of the week, including Saturdays.
